

Walking Wet

Baptism is a very powerful and passionate thing. Every time that you go to church and get the sign of the cross on your forehead, it's a reminder that you're "walking wet." Whenever I got baptized I never knew what it actually meant at the time. I feel very fortunate that I was born into a Christian family and was baptized as an infant. Getting baptized is very life-changing.

There are two sacraments in the Lutheran Church; baptism and communion. As I get confirmed it is my affirmation of my parents baptizing me as an infant. On May 20, 2001 my parents made the most marvelous decision to get me baptized. Many people wonder why you get baptized as an infant, well it is because god claims the child. My baptism is sacred because of the earthly water, the command of Christ, and the promise of grace.

By "walking wet" I am walking with Christ. I can see others who are "walking wet" with me by their actions. "Walking wet" is not complicated, it is simply just the gift of God's grace, and you have the power to help others.
